Re: Site Inspection, DOE/045/002, Harbolite Claims

In September, 1976 Harbolite Corp. notified the Division that they would be performing annual assessment work on their placer claims near Faust. Assessment work was to consist of "making an excavation on each of the placer claims and removing material from each claim for testing purposes".

On May 17, 1988 Holland Shepherd and I inspected the area and found that a series of small excavations and spoil piles dot the vicinity. All of these excavations are old and have vegetation reestablished upon them. Total surface disturbance appears to be less than two acres. There was no sign of any recent mining or any claim markers in the area. It is recommended that the file be retired and that the operator be notified when the new rules are implemented.
